About Me

I am a professional web designer and developer specializing in programming and the development of modern digital solutions. I possess practical experience in designing and developing comprehensive digital projects and platforms—including major initiatives like the "L9A5DMA" platform, which connects clients with service providers and facilitates online access to professional services.

My expertise lies in developing professional user interfaces (UI) and user experiences (UX), as well as building digital systems and integrating them with databases and modern services. I place a strong emphasis on performance, security, SEO, and usability.

I hold a Bachelor's degree in Physical Sciences and am currently pursuing university studies in English, which enables me to continuously enhance both my technical and linguistic skills. I also hold various certifications in programming and software development.

I am characterized by enthusiasm, precision, and creativity, with a proven ability to transform ideas into high-quality, practical digital projects. I am committed to continuous learning and staying up-to-date with the latest technologies in the software development field.
